Local Board Advised One
Would Not Report When Appeal Is Denied

Two more Circleville Jehovah's Witnesses defied Uncle Sam's Selective Service Act Friday by refusing to report for physical examination at the Columbus induction center.

They were James Matthew Grubb, 22, and John Wade Grubb, 29, both of whom lost their fight before the district Selective Service board of appeals to obtain classifications which would have deferred them from service because of their religious beliefs. Both claimed they were ministers of the Jehovah's Witness sect.

Pickaway county Selective Service board members said Friday after the contingent of men filling the August call left without the Grubb brothers, that necessary action would be taken during the day. It was not indicated what steps the board would take.

Serves Notice
James Matthew Grubb informed the board shortly after receiving his order to report that he would be absent when the bus left for Columbus. He mailed back his induction notice. Nothing had been (Continued on Page Three)

TACTICAL ERROR PROVES COSTLY FOR DESERTER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 13—H. William Chastine looked appraisingly at the Governor's mansion and decided, correctly, that the rooms should be spacious and comfortable.

Thereupon he rang the door bell, was ushered inside, and inquired politely of Mrs. Homer Adkins, wife of the governor, if he might rent a room. All this, as it turned out, was a tactical error and was responsible for the fact that Chastine was held today as an army deserter.

Mrs. Adkins concealed her astonishment, noted that her visitor wore army khaki and noted as well that he wore house shoes with his uniform. Having been a nurse in World War I, Mrs. Adkins knew this wasn't kosher. She excused herself a moment, called the police, then engaged Chastine in conversation until they arrived.

On his arrest, Chastine admitted he walked away from Camp Claiborne, La., June 3 and neglected to return. The prospects were that his quarters for some time to come will be slightly more cramped than he would have obtained at the governor's mansion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Roberto Lanas Vallecilla, 35-year-old ex-government employe, was held in $50,000 bail today on charges of espionage in behalf of Germany. Vallecilla, a native of Colombia, was employed by the coordinator of inter-American affairs until his arrest. 25 Percent Slash In Gas Ration May Take Effect Sunday Night

CHICAGO, Aug. 13—A 25 percent slash in gasoline rations in Midwestern states and sections of the South and Southwest, effective at midnight Sunday, was anticipated today by Office of Price Administration officials in Chicago.

Raymond S. McKeough, regional OPA administrator in Chicago, received orders for the reduction, but said he was not at liberty to discuss their details at present.

The expectation was that all three types of coupons, A, B and C, now worth four gallons each, would be cut to three gallons under the new decree.

PIPELINER FINED AND JAILED AS DRUNK DRIVER

Carl Shelton, 41, of Georgia, an employe of the C. S. Foreman Co., pipeline construction firm, was fined $100 and costs and committed to county jail Friday by Squire B. T. Hedges after he was found guilty of driving when intoxicated. The squire also ordered Shelton to pay for damages to the automobile of Charles Schlegler, East Franklin street, wrecked to an estimated extent of $350 in a collision at 2:45 a. m. Friday at Route 23 and Walnut creek pike intersection.

Five persons riding in the Schlegler car from the Curtis-Wright plant, Columbus, where they are employed, narrowly escaped serious injury when the 1937 Ford coupe driven by Shelton crashed into their Terraplane turning it over on its side. William Gaines, driving the Schlegler car, had stopped on the coupe going past on Route 23. Instead Shelton made a wide turn into the Walnut creek pike, crashing into the parked auto.

BIG INCH OIL FLOW NEARING EASTERN GOAL

LINDEN, N. J., Aug. 13—Oil from the west was well on its way to this eastern terminal of the big inch pipe line following the report that the "head" of the first flow was due to reach Phoenixville, Pa., some time this afternoon.

The remaining distance which the oil must travel on its 1,253 mile journey to this eastern outlet will take another two days, engineers estimated. Phoenixville is the branching-off point of the giant 24-inch pipe line which at that junction carries the vital fluid to Philadelphia and Linden via twenty-inch "spurs."

Allied Chieftains

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today announced that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will keep Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin completely informed of decisions reached at their forthcoming Canadian conference. This is a standing policy, Hull said, of the chiefs of the United Nations in their general war against the Axis powers.

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 13—The Russian announcement that Premier Joseph Stalin had not been invited to the military conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill appeared today to cast a new light on the forthcoming discussions.

To informed international observers, the announcement had only one significance—that Stalin wished to serve notice on the Allied world that he had not failed to appear for the conferences as a result of his own initiative.

Only three days ago in Washington, President Roosevelt had told his news conference that Stalin's absence from the Quebec discussions did not mean that he and Churchill would not have been happy to welcome him.

The announcement, carried by the official Russian news agency, represented the latest in a series of events which have given concern in high places that the Russian premier may have decided to lead his nation on its individual path, both during the war and in the establishment of the peace to follow.

Last week, the official Russian newspaper "Pravda" had reiterated Stalin's demand for a full-fledged second front in Europe which would be satisfactory only when one-fourth to one-third of Germany's military strength had been diverted from the Russo-German fighting front.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well, the cost of living has dropped eight-tenths of one percent and now will you stop screaming about high prices?

This is the first recorded drop since we got into the war and if the present dizzy downward pace continues, the cost of living will be down to pre-war levels within the next few centuries.

But eight-tenths of one percent is not to be sniggered at.

A fellow could lay something by for a rainy day out of that. Well maybe not exactly rainy... but misty anyway.

Imagine going into a bank and asking, "what's a good investment I can pick up for eight-tenths of one cent on the dollar?"

About the only thing they could suggest would be German war bonds.

Maybe not now, but soon.

Thought for the day: Inflation checked... eight-tenths of one percent.

Lieutenant John William (Bill) Dresbach, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Dresbach of Kingston and related to many Circleville and Pickaway county persons, has been killed in action, his parents have been informed by the Navy department.

Mr. and Mrs. Dresbach have not been told details of his death, although they understood he had been on anti-submarine patrol duty in the Caribbean area. The date of death was not reported.

In addition to his parents, Lieutenant Dresbach is survived by two sisters, Mary Ann and Jean, both at home. His father operates the Fox Farm, Route 23 road house.

Lieutenant Dresbach was graduated from Kingston high school and entered the navy as an air cadet after being graduated from Miami university. He received bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees at Miami.

The youth won the rank of ensign and received his wings prior to the outbreak of war, moving from ensign to lieutenant junior grade and then to the full rank of lieutenant.

Lieutenant Dresbach had been based in Puerto Rico the last time he communicated with his family.

SCIENCE SAVES WELDER'S SIGHT IN MAGIC WAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—An unnamed welder in a war plant today owes the sight of at least one of his eyes to Samuel Berman, subway system engineer, inventor of a delicate instrument used to locate metal splinters imbedded in the flesh.

A small sliver of steel, about an eighth of an inch in length punctured the worker's eyeball and finally was located by Berman's director which operates on the principal of reflected radio waves. So deep had the splinter penetrated the eyeball, that the optic had to be removed and the foreign substance extracted from the rear.

The piece of steel was actually pulled from the eye-ball by a powerful electro-magnet, but an incision was required first at the proper spot to prevent injury to the delicate organ.

BULLETIN
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 13—The main force of American troops advancing east of Orlando in Sicily today established full contact with a new United States landing party which flanked the axis lines on the north coast.

By International News Service
The most widespread bombardments in the history of aerial warfare were climaxed today with a second daylight attack on Rome which followed devastating night assaults on Milan and Turin and a sweep by speedy British Mosquito bombers over Berlin.

Thus for the first time in history, the two Axis capitals were assaulted from the air almost simultaneously.

With full details of all the assaults still awaited, this was the box-score chalked up after 12 hours of record-breaking intensity:

ROME: Bombarded for the second time in its centuries of history in a sharp new warning to Premier Marshal Badoglio that the alternative to peace is devastation. Large formations of heavy and medium American bombers led by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, hero of the Tokyo raid, blasted railway lines and installations, again protecting religious and historic buildings from harm.

BERLIN: Attacked by 400-mile an hour Mosquitoes coincident with a flood of reports that many administrative departments of the Nazi regime are being moved from the German capital to Vienna and other more distant cities.

TURIN: Assaulted by gigantic waves of Allied bombers as part of the greatest aerial assault of the war against northern Italy. The Italian high command admitted "very heavy damage."

MILAN: Plastered mercilessly by huge raiding forces which dropped such devastating loads of incendiaries and high explosive block-buster bombs that watchers on hill-tops across the border in Switzerland reported feeling the vibration of bomb blasts and witnessing great sheets of fire that rose into the sky above the city, hotbed of peace and liberty dem-

13 HOUNDS KIRK CUPP WHO SCOFFS AT SUPERSTITION

This is Friday, August 13, Jinx Day to many folk, but just another day in the week to Kirk Cupp, East High street, an employe for several years of the Ralston Purina Co.

Cupp doesn't believe in jinxes, even though he went to Columbus to try to qualify for service in one of Uncle Sam's uniforms. He was acting leader of a draft contingent which went to the Capital city Friday.

"Jinxes have never worried me," Cupp said Friday before stepping on the bus headed for Columbus.

"Just take a look at this series of 13s. I was put into 1-A on January 13; received my induction papers July 13, and leave today for the induction center, and this is August 13."

"Only 13 days after the induction date I will be 26 years old, which is just twice the so-called unlucky number." And the date will be the 26th which is twice 13 again.

Elmer Rayman, 82, brother of Walter Rayman, here, died at his home in Lakewood (Cleveland). He had taught in the Cleveland schools for forty-three years, teaching continuously in one school for thirty years. It will be recalled that Prof. Rayman was the first teacher in the first township high school in Ohio, that of Madison township, this county. That was in 1880 as it is recalled. That was at St. Paul with the building yet standing.

James McNeal moved Tuesday from the dwelling property on Powell street he recently sold to Henry Gloyd. He temporarily stored his household goods until another dwelling place can be found. Too, Mrs. William Barch removed from the dwelling she recently sold to Miss Cleona Durnick, locating back at the old home on the Lottbourne road in Harrison township. An addition to the dwelling is being erected but not yet completed.

Rev. Walter Peters, a former pastor here at the Methodist church and now located at Marietta, with the wife and Mrs. Grace Andrews were guests for a few days at the home of Mrs. Nellie Whitehead near town. Said that the son Jerry is in the war service being at Camp Eustis, Va. Miss Wilma Jean Whitehead will accompany the Peters family to their home for a visit.

Some kindly disposed individual, while Old Morpheus had us soundly in his grasp last night, deposited just outside our door a bag full of fine ripe tomatoes. And thanks awfully much for the remembrance.

George Oday in the war service at Camp Swift, Texas, is home on a short furlough. Is getting along fine and if things don't get any worse than he has been having it, thinks war is not so bad. But there is plenty time yet for "hot stuff" ahead, he said. He is the son of Hays and Mrs. Oday.

Both the school board and village council will have sessions Monday evening. The school contingent may be hiring a janitor and a couple of teachers to take care of vacancies. And the council besides the paying of current bills, may arrange to have a lot of curb and gutters constructed.

Met young David Dill, here the other morning on furlough from Camp Ellis, Ill. He is in Headquarters Company, Training Aids Branch and likes his work. In heft, he has put on some 20 pounds or more which tells the story that the eats are both plenty and good.

That 4-inch long insect with neatly folded wings and which was brought to headquarters the other day for identification by Ed. Steele, Madison township, was given its liberty yesterday morning and in a few seconds was out of sight up in the air winging its way back home to again renew family ties. The name of the insect, "Mantid" according to the entomology. Our Thad Parks is a specialist in "bugology" at State university.

RED STATEMENT PUTS NEW LIGHT ON CONFERENCE

Stalin Serves Notice That Failure To Appear Not Of Own Initiative

(Continued from Page One) not expected to take place in Quebec for the next several days. Military staffs of Great Britain and the United States are now holding preliminary discussions at the Chateau Frontenac, and time must be given them to formulate military and naval strategy for submission to the two nations' high commands.

Following the precedent set at previous meetings, it is understood that the British and United States military and naval high commands are meeting jointly to work out the strategy of attack to be employed in this global war.

It is only later that the highest ranking officials of the two United Nations join in the discussions—to revise or approve the military moves that undoubtedly will make headlines and history in the months to come.

Uppermost in the thoughts of observers here is the question of what the Allied strategists are planning for carrying the war to German soil.

To Plan Invasions

It is felt here, that while previous meetings have laid the groundwork for an invasion of Europe, the present conference will determine the actual avenue of approach, the numbers of troops to be thrown into the assault, and the amounts of material to be concentrated for the battle to come. In other words, the view here is that this is the conference that will spell the end for Germany in the war—an eventuality that some optimists predict may be realized before the year's end.

But, while speculation centers on the European theatre of war, undoubtedly the Pacific situation will also receive close examination, and plans for the invasion routes to Tokyo will be given more particular attention.

But even with these two all-important matters of war strategy to be discussed it is increasingly apparent that problems of peace negotiations are also being surveyed, drawing Britain and the United States still closer in their determination to uproot the basic causes of intermittent European wars.

It is in this connection that the absence of Premier Joseph Stalin, or other high Russian officials, is most keenly noticed. In the realm of warfare, it is felt that Russia's job is plainly mapped out in Allied strategy plans—to continue her increasing pressure on the Third Reich's eastern front.

For this reason it is believed that Stalin's presence is not vital to purely military discussions, as the strategy decisions can easily be transmitted to him in Moscow.

But, in Washington and in London, Stalin's hints to take Russia on an independent course in the war and in the peace to follow—most openly evidenced by his reiterated demands for a full second front in Europe—have been the cause of deep anxiety in high places.

If these differences between Russia on the one hand and Britain and the United States on the other do exist, it is certain that they will come under microscopic examination in the course of the pending talks. And should these differences be resolved to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned, it is probable that the agreement will remain as another secret of the war—at least until peace has once more been established.

Riding with Shelton was Woodrow Walker, 26, also of Georgia, owner of the Ford which figured in the wreck.

Deputy Sheriff Vern Pontious investigated the crash, assisted by Patrolmen Elmer Merriman and Turney Ross. The latter two took Shelton and Walker to Berger hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

P. I. PROMISED REAL FREEDOM

(Continued from Page One) congress "has acted to set up the independence of the Philippines," and added that "the time will come quickly when that will go into effect." He promised that America will fight with "ever increasing strength and vigor," and said that "already Japan is tasting defeat on the islands of the southwest Pacific." He declared that this "is only the beginning."

The chief executive's statements were immediately welcomed by Philippine President Manuel L. Quezon who said that Mr. Roosevelt's address would lend great moral support to his people. Quezon said that his people will need all the moral support they can receive in resisting the "blandishments of Japanese duplicity," and declared that the President's assurances "will encourage them greatly."

Taking note of Japanese broadcasts that resistance still persists in the Philippines, President Roosevelt called on the "heroic people of the Philippines" to keep up the fight and "stand firm against the false promises of the Japanese just as your fighting men and our fighting men stood firm together against their barbaric attacks."

GRUBB BROTHERS FAIL TO REPORT FOR INDUCTION

Daniel Grubb, a brother of the two who failed to report today, appeared for his induction examination some months ago, was accepted and then failed to report for service at the end of his furlough. He was arrested by local authorities at the request of the U. S. marshal and was taken to an army camp. Grubb is now stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., wears a uniform but performs no military duties. At least twice when he has been home on short leaves he has appeared in the business district, selling Jehovah's Witness literature.

Contingent Leaves

The draft contingent which left Friday included some single men and numerous married men who have wives only as dependents. Several others taken were men whose martial status has recently changed.

Men accepted for the navy will be given a week's leave, while men going into the army will return home for 21 days.

The board cancelled the induction order of Bernard D. Haynes of Shelby after it learned Haynes had been injured in an accident there.

Three men given induction orders were transferred to other boards, they being Evans A. Ruthford of Columbus, Jack Lowell Binkley of Perrysburg and Ernest Nyl Taylor of Ypsilanti, Mich.

Four men transferred here from other boards for induction included Daniel C. Maynard, Louisa, Ky.; Fred R. Campbell, Lancaster; John Dennis Corcoran, Denver, Colo.; and Robert D. Buchwalter, Chicago, Ill.

Other members of the contingent included:

Circleville: George Davis, Robert E. Hundley, George Henry Grooms, Clyde Bates, Kirk Lloyd Cupp, leader; Lewis James Black, Noble E. Barr, Cyrus H. Baucher, Homer Leo McClure, James F. AUTOS IN COLLISION

Property damage was done, but no personal injury resulted at 3 p. m. Thursday in a collision on Western avenue. Police report shows that the car of Samuel Winflow, West Ohio street, driven by his son, Gerald, 18, skidded on a curve and crashed against the Ralston Purina Co. truck driven by James O. Hise, 18, of Frankfort. A fender on the truck was damaged.

NEW DEAL MAPS VOTE FOR ARMY

The Sabath measure would strengthen the act and ensure a ballot for those serving overseas. According to the Illinois congressman, there are 8,500,000 persons in the service old enough to vote.

Sabath charged that the Ramsay act, passed by congress in 1942, failed in operation "because the Army and Navy did not carry out the intent of congress."

"My bill," he asserted, "will make it mandatory for the war and navy departments to aid and assist those in the armed services to cast their ballots. These departments did not cooperate as they should have in the last election."

Both Army and Navy officials testified before congressional committees last year that the task of handling ballots for everyone in the services, particularly those overseas, would impede and in some cases might endanger military operations.

Sabath scoffed at this contention and he likewise denied that his legislative proposal was prompted by party politics.

"Personally, I think 75 percent of those in the services will vote for President Roosevelt for a fourth term."

TWO AUTOS DAMAGED

Both cars were damaged slightly at 8 p. m. Thursday when the 1929 Ford Tudor driven by Bascom Blevins, 42, Long Alley, and the 1940 Mercury Tudor driven by Harold Green, 16, North Court street, figured in a collision at Court and Main streets. Blevins was traveling west on Main and Green was going south on Court when the two cars came together.

ALL-AMERICAN ATTACK BLASTS ITALIAN CAPITAL

Doolittle Leads Yanks In Second Assault; British Bomb Chief Nazi City

Number Not Told

The exact number of bombers which participated in the new Rome attack was not made known. Brief official statements in London and at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters in North Africa merely confirmed that precise care again had been taken to insure that none of Rome's historic buildings were hit.

An Italian news broadcast said the new Rome raid lasted for 90 minutes, beginning shortly after 11 a. m. In the previous raid on Rome, the first American bomb was dropped at 11:11 a. m. after the populace had been warned by leaflets that the bombers were on their way.

"Coming in successive waves at regular intervals," the broadcast said, "enemy planes flew at great altitude over the surrounding districts of Rome, dropping numerous bombs."

"Anti-aircraft guns immediately went into action."

"Numerous bombs were dropped in the Tuscolan area, which was devastated in the first raid. The church of the Madonna Della Rota was seriously damaged. Several delayed action bombs were dropped around the Piazza Villa Fioresi."

The first wave of Flying Fortresses in the all-American attack went after the San Lorenzo railway yards, heavily raided in the previous onslaught against Rome. At almost the same time, waves of Mitchells and Marauders bombed the Littorio railway yards. Lockheed Lightnings accompanied the bombers.

Briefing Orders Short

The northwest African air force command gave no particular briefing instructions to the crews this time beyond order to spare religious and cultural institutions. Because of the present policy of the Badoglio government, Rome is now regarded as a purely military rather than a special target and will be treated the same as any other enemy objective containing important installations.

The Littorio yards carry traffic to Rome from Genoa, while the San Lorenzo tracks, in the east central section of Rome, carry traffic from Florence. Both have been used in transportation of German military equipment and reinforcements.

In Sicily, the American Seventh army penetrated to within four miles of the inland communications center of Randazzo and units of the British Eighth army pushed up the east coast to within three miles of Riposto as an Allied communiqué disclosed that American and British naval units yesterday heavily shelled Axis escape routes along the north and east coasts.

Roads, highways and bridges from Piralmo eastward to Marina Di Patti on the north coast were bombed by American naval craft while American torpedo patrol boats ranged northeast coastal waters to harry the enemy's attempt to evacuate men and materiel to the Italian mainland.

On the east coast, British Royal Navy forces heavily bombarded the road-area at Taormina and Cape Ali.

A Cairo communique disclosed that American Liberator and Halifax bombers from the middle east blasted San Giovanni, ferry terminal on the Italian mainland opposite Messina.

On the Russian front capture of Kharkov approached closer as Soviet units battled the Nazis only five miles northeast of the city while other Red army units chased retreating Germans from captured Chuguev, Nazi strongpoint 22 miles southeast of the city.

In Tokyo, newspapers and the radio warned the Japanese of the possibility of surprise American landings, probably as a consequence of the second American air raid yesterday on the northern Kuriles, 1,200 miles north of Tokyo and site of an important naval and air base.

In the South Pacific, American jungle troops closed in on the surrounded Japanese stragglers in the Bairoko Harbor area of New Georgia island in the Solomons, while Allied ground troops engaged in skirmishes and artillery duels near Salamaua, besieged Japanese base in New Guinea.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Makes me feel extra good hearin' you talk that way, Judge... never realized I was contributin' to the war effort in the way you mention."

"You certainly are, Hank. Part of the grain you farmers grow is used by the beverage distilling industry to make alcohol for war purposes. Hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year for smokeless powder, medical supplies, chemical warfare materials, shatterproof glass, lacquer for camouflaging equipment, fuel to propel torpedoes and in the making of critically needed synthetic rubber. But, Hank, the grain used in distilling this alcohol is not thrown away. It is processed and comes back to the farm again in the form of distillers' dried grains or dried solubles which you use for dairy feeds, hog supplements and poultry mash. This year alone it is estimated 388,000 tons of these much needed feed stuffs will be produced by the distillers."

"I can see now, Judge, why you say it's a mighty good thing we have a legal distilling industry in times like these."

OPEN LETTERS

TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

MEN: You are performing a fine service by planning a public dinner for Congressman Walter Brehm, and I hope the event is a success. Mr. Brehm has much to tell his Pickaway county friends concerning his work and the work of other solons in the present congress, and he may also look into the future. The meeting should attract a large audience.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE MAD SCIOTO

RIVER: For a good many years Uncle Sam's engineers have been talking about cleaning up the Scioto river, but so far nothing has been done. The stream should be dredged, levees in certain areas should be strengthened and several other things should be done to keep the river in its banks. Scores of times we have suffered immensely because of the flood waters, and this year is no exception. Corn was hit first by heavy rains which delayed planting; then by corn borer, and later by the river. And still there is a pretty good corn crop. What it might have been without all these things contesting its growth is something no one can answer. The new roadway west of the Scioto bridge has greatly aided motorists in traveling east and west, but no help has been provided for the farmer so far as the stream is concerned. How about it?

CIRCUITEER.

TO MOTORISTS

DRIVERS: It is indicated by OPA that the big "crack down" that has been promised against motorists who refuse to abide by safe driving regulations is at hand. You fellows who insist on violating laws had better steel yourselves against a summons from OPA to appear for hearing. The time is near. Don't be surprised, you've certainly been warned enough. And at the same time, you might be looking after that government use tax stamp that you have been neglecting for so long. Mr. Whiskers is about to start hauling in the boys who fail to abide by this order.

CIRCUITEER.

TO 37th DIVISION

SOLDIERS: Nice going, gang, stay in there and pitch. Here's hoping the 37th is the first one to step foot into Tokyo, at least into the part that's left after our Liberators, Fortresses and other aircraft get through blasting it into smithereens.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: The county health office checked water from 10 wells in rural Pickaway county in the last couple of weeks, and the samples were all found to be polluted. These families are not now permitted to use water from these wells.

Corrections must be made and the water must be cleaned up before it can be used. All of you should exercise extreme care in having wells dug. You should be certain that the top of the well is sound and that no surface water can get into the well. If you have any fear that the water in your well is polluted, please get in touch with the health office. It is always ready to help you.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FRED DONNELLY

SIR: Your Spanish-American War Veteran association buddies made a wise choice when they named you as their association president for the next year. It is mighty fine that you fellows get together once every year for a reunion to talk over the things you saw and did in the war with the Spaniards. I hope your organization members are never too busy to meet this once in every 365 days to renew friendships.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WHEAT GROWERS

FARMERS: Many of you can thank your lucky stars that you hold government crop insurance this Summer, because without it you would be in a tough spot so far as your wheat crop is concerned. According to estimates, more than $100,000 will be sent into Pickaway county by the government to pay off crop insurance obligations. It's too bad that the wheat crop could not have been as good as usual, because wheat can be used in many parts of the world, but it is nice to know that many of you will be protected against heavy loss.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MAYOR BEN GORDON

EXECUTIVE: Congratulations, your honor, for being nominated for a second time as mayor of Circleville. Ever since you made your debut into Circleville politics you have been the No. 1 candidate in all elections, whether primary or otherwise. Any time you have been on the ticket you have been first in the vote parade. Such recognition must be deserved, so more power to you.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PURINA EMPLOYEES

WAR WORKERS: Congratulations, you fellows and girls, for a swell job. Uncle Sam recognizes men and women who are performing outstanding efforts in the interest of Uncle Sam's victories, whether they be in airplane plants, or in munitions factories, on the farm, or in the mills putting out Food for Freedom. You people are deserving of all the praise that has been heaped on you. Keep up the good work.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BENNY JOHNSON

FLYER: To you, Ben, goes the week's orchid for a splendid effort against Corporal Hitler's minions. Uncle Sam's Air Medal is coveted by many. Few win it. You are wearing it, and I know you are wearing it proudly. Every Circleville person always hopes for the best for every one of the hundreds of local lads wearing the American uniform, and I know that every one who read that you had won the Air Medal was pleased. God speed you in your work.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FARMERS

TILLERS OF THE SOIL: Make a note right now that you must file an income tax report and a payment on your 1943 taxable income not later than December 15. Probably some help will be provided in filling out the form and you will need it. And if you have anything left after paying your tax you will be better off than many other business men. And we "ain't seen nothing yet."

Ideas on Food Research

side of the question, and if you will follow this advice absolutely and not pay attention to any other talk, all your children and dependents will be perfectly healthy and happy.

Now it just so happens that in the field of nutrition there are individual differences between men and women, women and women, and women and men. This fellow may get along all right on the National Nutrition Council's daily allowance of protein, while the other fellow is miserable on it. And both would be eating perfectly healthful diets for them if they could get what they want.

The rigid demands made for the daily amount of vitamins to be eaten is based on no scientific data whatever. No scientist on earth knows what the minimum daily amount of vitamin C to keep you healthy is. It was recently pointed out that the symptoms of deficiency of the vitamin, riboflavin, which have been discussed at such length probably do not exist at all or are due to many causes, not just riboflavin deficiency. So when you start out to follow a rigidly scientifically calculated diet which has worked all right for John Doe in the laboratory, it may not suit you, Thomas Jefferson Adams Jackson, at all.

One of the fundamental errors of highly scientific boards is that the members are used to applying

Leave My Heart Alone

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

THIS WAS a nice place to sit in a parked car and talk, Karen decided. There was shade from the late afternoon sun under the tall

Australian pines; the lake was full of movement, little fishing boats coming in from their day's labor, a white yacht bobbing up and down, like a rocking chair, on the choppy crest of its blue-green surface. The bridge was deserted, for the home-bound traffic was not yet unleashed. In a cloudless sky an airplane banked and circled, its drone the soothing sound of bees, practicing maneuvers.

She said the usual things about the war—how terrible it was, how unexpected, how everyone was now anxious to do his part, asking the usual questions. What did Marty think about it? Did he believe it would have to last very long? Was there any danger of the mainland being attacked? She did not ask, not so soon or so directly, what he was going to do about it.

She realized that she had done the talking; Martin had given the expected answers at expected intervals. It had come sooner than foreseen; it was a stab in the back; no one could predict how long it might last; he was not of the opinion that the mainland could be invaded, not by Japanese on the west coast, or Hitler on the east.

But he did not answer the important questions: what he, himself thought, what he was going to do. He did not add his usual discussion of war. He had said that she could talk, and that he would listen. That was about what it amounted to, Karen decided. If she wanted anything more from him, she would have to ask for that, too.

She said, "The reason we postponed our wedding until spring—on, surely it only was postponed for that short time—was because Paul had immediately signed up with the Civil Air Patrol. He flies four hours at a time. He turned over his plane to the government, too."

"That's most commendable, considering the government will take all private planes and things like that million-dollar yacht anchored out there before this fracas is much farther along. And considering that this coast must be protected, as well as our other fronts that are more dangerous and farther removed from our shores. But of course he would do the right thing, your young man, if always a bit late doing it," he ended on a different tone, his teasing one, one that did not hold the slight irony in his first words that were contradicted by his last.

"He wasn't late in this!" Karen was angry at herself for defending Paul when he did not need it. Maybe she was so quick because she felt he needed it for other reasons.

"And what Paul's doing is dangerous and important. He flies clear out over the ship lanes, not only looking for subs or signs of them, but keeping constant vigil over the freighters and convoys. He's reported out sick several times, where our boats have gone down. But I guess I'm not supposed to talk about that."

"I guess not," Martin agreed. He added, "You got me wrong, sister, if you thought I was underrating your sweetie. I am aware he is a swell guy and 100 per cent American. I only meant our country is going to need every man who can fly, and then some. I hold our own coast worth protecting, and even the smallest fishing barge as well as the ships being sunk faster than we can replace them. There are other methods of attack, from within, far graver than invasion and air raid."

He did not name them, but she knew he meant inner friction, strikes, sabotage, any and all forms of a fifth column. And she agreed with that, but still he had not said what part he meant to take. She said, "Paul may go into the regular Army. In fact, I know he will if he feels, later, that that is where he is most needed. That's another reason, the MAIN one, we thought it more sensible to not be married in a rush." Martin must be made to understand that the postponement had been mutual.

Could Paul have asked for it, as Eva claimed, because he felt some doubt within himself?

"Much more sensible," Marty agreed, too solemnly. In that same tone he said almost the same thing Eva had said to Karen. "You don't know much about love, do you, Miss Fairfax?"

"I don't know what you mean. And you did promise not to keep on calling me names." Why was it he always could make her so angry, just as he always could right anger again instantly, as he did now, with his wide, engaging grin.

"If I break my promises to you," he said, "it's because you make me do it. I told you once that you made me do things I know I shouldn't. You are so lovely, Karen, that I keep forgetting you are such a sensible young lady. And when I said you didn't know much about love I meant a kind of love that you don't know anything about, although maybe it's just as well."

She supposed he meant the kind he himself must have suffered, since Karen still was of the opinion that that was all the mystery there was about him, that he had a love in his past. Hadn't he as much as said so himself when he had warned her to leave his heart alone? She supposed he meant the kind of love that hurt, bringing bitterness as well as joy, tears as well as laughter. Well, she was learning about that now, wasn't she?—thanks again to Eva. Or maybe he meant the kind that sent you up and down your spine when you were kissed. But since she had learned about that from him she would not include it.

She said, "Of course you are the only one who knows anything—about anyone." He claimed he knew all about her, and she was finding out she did not know herself, or Paul, so that no one could know that much, ever.

He gave her his wide grin again. "I stand corrected, Teacher. I beg your pardon, I mean, Karen, although why can't I call you something of my own, say Katy, or even K, since I'm not allowed the special privilege afforded your special B. F., as Buffy brought out when he said that Mr. Wyatt calls you his darling . . ."

"Call me K, or even Katy, if you insist," Karen broke in, laughing in spite of herself, although that went to show she had been right in thinking it would help to talk with Marty, who could always get a laugh, if he could get other things like anger and annoyance. She thought Buffy a much safer topic, so she said, "I promised Buffy he could go fishing with you some time. But it may have to wait awhile. He had a little upset. Nothing much." She would not want Martin to know about the airplane ride with Paul that had caused Buffy's illness. She must hold on to all the loyalty she had for Paul now, needing it to stifle any doubts.

"That's too bad," Martin said of the child's upset. "I'm glad it was not anything. He's such a game little chap. Not afraid of anything." Karen was glad Marty thought as she did about that. Buffy's fear of planes was well founded; it no longer existed, now that he had met it. She still felt sure that Martin would have found some other way, more like her own, than forcing Buffy to go up. On an impulse she said, "Since you didn't catch those fish, why don't you come home with me for dinner? Buffy would be delighted." It would be a delightful surprise for the boy. There were no guests for dinner this evening. No reason that she could see, why she should not invite Martin.

He said, "Is that the only reason you ask me? To please Buffy—and because you're afraid I might go hungry?"

"Of course not. I'd like to have you, too. I'd like to have you meet my father—and Paul. No doubt he will drop in later." Hadn't she told him before she wanted him to meet Paul—and herself that Paul must get to know Martin? Now that she had obeyed this impulse, she would not retract it. "Please come," she urged, her eyes smiling into his to show him she really wanted him.

"I'm not dressed," he began.

"Dinner is informal tonight. No guests. I won't dress, either. Besides, you look very nice, Mr. Fisherman." His skin had darkened from these past weeks spent out of doors and it made a pleasant contrast to his white shirt and trousers which, although worn, were spic and span.

"When you put it that way, and call me names, how could a mere mortal man refuse you?" Martin asked.

War-Wounded to Get Better Breaks Than 1917-'18 Vets | Industry Has Now Discovered Physical Impairments No Bar

WASHINGTON—When our boys come marching home, many bearing the scars of battle, their concern first and foremost, will be to get a job.

And getting a job may be easier than it was after World War I, which ushered 234,300 war-wounded into a period of great unemployment, predicts a Washington woman who should know. She bases her optimism on what the physically handicapped are doing in war plants right now.

Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the labor department since World War I days, goes further and says she has proof. She points to the handicapped war workers doing jobs that only a shortage of labor would make possible. They are blazing a trail for the returning soldiers wounded or injured in the war.

These workers are proving assets, not liabilities, maintains the labor department official, adding that "employment of physically handicapped workers has increased 112 per cent in the last year."

With a grin, Miss Anderson confides, "They have overcome their biggest handicap . . . employer resistance."

Skeptical employers, faced with labor shortages, have half-heartedly tried out disabled persons in a great variety of jobs, and find their performance up to standard . . . and sometimes better. Miss Anderson isn't guessing. Or basing her cheerful prediction on a few letters from enthusiastic employers. She conducted a survey of war plants in an eastern industrial area . . . and admits she was happily surprised herself with the results.

The survey revealed handicaps are doing office work; cripples work on assembly and adjustment of small-instrument parts; others on installation and fabrication in the electrical department. The hard-of-hearing and totally deaf are operating machines. Blind workers are checking and inspecting.

In one war factory producing box ends, blind workers are making a high production record. Seeing-eye dogs are parked near their work places. When the bell rings for rest periods, the dogs go to their masters. Also when the quitting bell rings the dogs escort their masters to the time cards and out of door so fast that the rest of the workers can hardly keep up with them.

An infantile paralysis victim has held a job for seven years and out of gratitude to his employer refuses to take a higher-paid war job.

In 1942, placements of physically handicapped workers by local offices increased by 112 per cent, from 14,318 during the first quarter of the year to 30,547 during the last quarter.

"Yet, there is need for improvement," Miss Anderson points out. "Disabled individuals number over 10 per cent of the applicants in the active file of some employment offices, but handicapped placements in 1940 were only 0.7 per cent of the total. By the end of 1942, they had risen to only 1.8 per cent of the total."

The government does not draw upon the hiring of handicapped workers. In fact, the Federal Civil Service Commission has met the present emergency, by lowering considerably the physical requirements for many jobs.

Moreover, they have made surveys to see where and how the handicapped might be employed on an even bigger scale.

God Provides for His People

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 15 is Exodus 16, 17, the Golden Text being Matthew 6:11, "Give us this day our daily bread.")

ON THE 15th day of the second month after leaving Egypt, the Israelites came to the wilderness of Sin, which lay along the western borders of the peninsula, opposite Mt. Sinai. It was largely sandy waste, with little pasture for cattle. The people began to be hungry and remembering what abundant food they had been accustomed to in Egypt, and probably forgetting the cruelties they had suffered, they began to complain bitterly.

Moses went to the Lord with this trouble, and He said He would rain bread from Heaven for them. They should gather just enough for each family for five days, and on the sixth day they should gather enough for two days, as they must do no work on the seventh. In the evening great flocks of quail flew over so the people would have flesh at night and bread in the morning.

See how ungrateful the children of Israel were for the Lord's bounty, and how they tried to cheat. Some gathered only what was enough for their daily needs, as they were told, but others gathered more than they needed. They were punished, however, for what they saved from one day to the next went wormy and became foul smelling so that it could not be eaten. On the sixth day they gathered enough for two days, as the Lord had said no manna should fall on the seventh day. The manna saved for the Sabbath did not go bad, but was good next day. Some disbelievers actually went out on the Sabbath to gather manna, although they had been told there would be none, and the Lord was angry and said to Moses: "How long refuse ye to keep My commandments and My laws?"

Ate Manna 40 Years

Moses took a pot and filled it with manna, at the Lord's command, and laid it up "before the Lord, to be kept for your generations." The children of Israel ate manna for 40 years "until they came to a land inhabited."

The people then journeyed to Rephidim, and pitched their tents, but there was no water there, wherefore they again scolded Moses and asked him why he had brought them out of Egypt to die of thirst in the wilderness. Calling on the Lord Moses was told to take his rod and the elders and "behold I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink."

Moses did so and named the place Massah and Meribah because of the unbelief of the children of Israel, saying "Is the Lord among us or not?"

Next they were attacked by the Amalekites, who were their own kinsmen through Esau, Jacob's brother, who apparently were jealous when they saw the land invaded by these thousands of Israelites.

Moses told Joshua to choose men and go out and fight the Amalekites, and he, Moses, would stand on top of a hill with his rod and watch. Aaron, his brother, went with him and Hur, who is said to have been Miriam's husband.

The fight was bitter, and when Moses held up his hand the Israelites prevailed, but when his hand dropped Amalek won.

Hands Grow Weary

Moses' hands were weary and he could not hold them up all the time, so Aaron and Hur sat him down on a stone, and knelt one on each side of him and held up his hands. "And his hands were steady until the going down of the sun."

"And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the sword."

"And the Lord said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: for I will utterly put out of remembrance of Amalek from under heaven."

The extermination of the Amalekites took place after the time of Saul and David, by a party of Simeonites in the reign of Hezekiah.

"And Moses built an altar and called the name of it Jehovahniissi, for he said, Because the Lord hath sworn that the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation."

DECREASE FIRE HAZARD

NEW YORK—The wood preserving industry predicts an ever-widening use of flame-proofed lumber by the railroads where fire-resistant construction can insure against interruption of vital transportation. The chemically treated wood is recommended for use where fire hazards are great—in foundries, fueling stations, engine houses, railway shops buildings and many other structures.

WATER CARRIERS BUSY

WASHINGTON—In the current hell of war, modern Gunga Dins are "squatting" on the coals, giving drinks to poor damned souls" as did Kipling's immortal water carrier, according to a report by the Geological Survey to Secretary of the Interior Ickes. Water is the number one "must" of the fighting men. When the invasion of North Africa took place, the report said, geologists went ashore with the first landing troops. When the troops went into action with machine guns, the scientific "water boys" were active too—with drills and pumps.

To My Many Friends in Pickaway County—

On August 19 I am closing my offices for the duration of the war. I have enlisted in the United States Navy and will leave the last of the month for duty.

This step is being taken after due consideration, but I feel that if, in some small way, I can help to hasten victory for our country, then the sacrifice to my personal interests will be well worth this decision.

In this message I want to express my very, very sincere thanks to my hundreds of friends in Circleville and Pickaway County. First, for the patronage that has been so generously given to me during my six years among you; secondly, for the manner in which you have made me feel at home among the people of the district and have welcomed me and my family into the business and social activities of the community.

In regard to my practice, Mrs. Goldschmidt will have all the records of my past patients at our home, Reber and Atwater avenues, Circleville. She will be able to replace lenses and take care of other details regarding glasses. This service can be provided through contacts I am maintaining with supply houses with whom I have done business in the past. We are glad to maintain a limited service in this manner, and any considerations that can be extended to Mrs. Goldschmidt will be appreciated.

My office will close August 19. Please call before that date for any work you may have here. I will be at home until August 26. Urgent needs can be handled until that time by phoning 447.

Again, I want to say "Thanks", and I'll live with the hopes that I will see you all after Victory and be able to continue my practice and social life in the finest community in the land.

VERY SINCERELY,

Dr. David S. Goldschmidt

OHIO U. TO GIVE UP GRID SPORT UNTIL WAR ENDS

ATHENS, Aug. 13—Wartime conditions led Ohio university at Athens to cancel its 1943 intercollegiate football schedule today.

The manpower shortage, the inability to use army men on the campus, and the cancellation of games by opponents who already had dropped the gridiron sport were given as the reasons.

"We still hope to play basketball and baseball," said athletic director Don Peden. "And the cancellation of football is for 1943 only not for the duration."

PROVO, Utah, Aug. 13—Manpower shortages and army use of equipment was given today as the reason for Brigham Young university abandoning intercollegiate football for this fall.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Aug. 13—Another college dropped from the Rocky Mountain conference sport schedule today for the 1943-44 season, with suspension of all sports at Colorado State College.

The normal catch of swordfish on the Atlantic coast averages about two million pounds a year; the smaller Pacific coast catch runs to about half a million.

MARCH OF TIME

March of Time returns to the air over NBC Thursday night, August 19, at 10:30 P. M., following a six-week summer vacation. With Westbrook Van Voorhis as commentator and Donald Voorhees as musical director, the program will continue its original, up-to-the-minute presentation of the people who make the news. War leaders and on-the-scene correspondents will come to March of Time microphones throughout the world to give vivid eye-witness reports of the news as it happens. The program will continue its famous behind-the-scenes dramatizations of the human events in the news and will present the newest hit songs of a world at war.

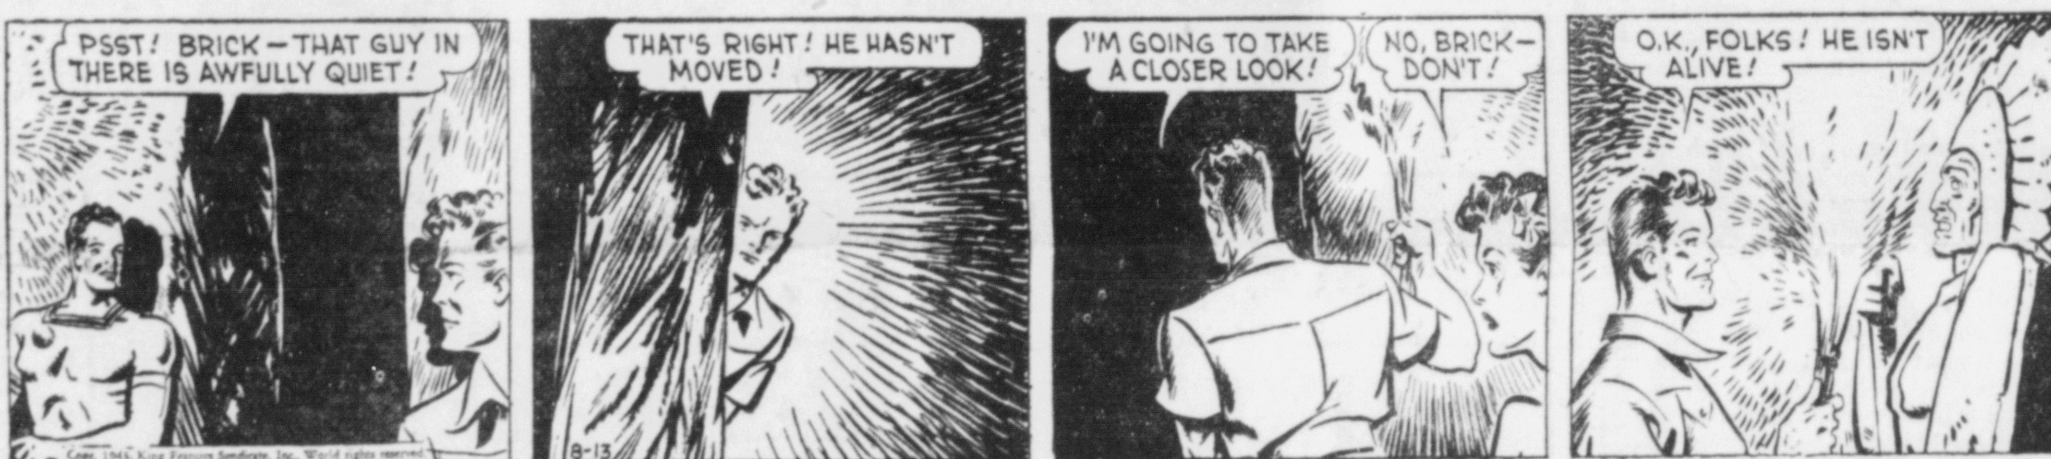

"SALUTE TO YOUTH"

Capt. Joe Foss, famed Marine hero who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor; Walter Edsell, developer of a life jacket which uses half the usual amount of rubber; Elaine Vito, 18-year-old pianist in Raymond Paige's "Young Americans" orchestra, and the fighting youth of Norway who continued to resist the Nazis—all will be hailed on "Salute to Youth" on station WLW at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday, August 17. Miss Vito's harp solo with the orchestra is "Time on My Hands." Nadine Conner, the Metropolitan Opera soprano, sings "Will You Remember?" and "Heavenly Music." Orchestral selections include a Norwegian medley of excerpts from Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suites" and Piano Concerto in A Minor, "Ich Liebe Dich," "March of the Bojaren" and "March of the Dwarfs."

there's bound to be trouble. In "The Case Where Death Played Dummy," the Nero Wolfe adventure to be aired Monday, August 16, at 8:30 P. M. over the Blue Network, there's not only trouble but a slight case of murder.

Ordinarily Detective Wolfe would refuse to trouble himself with a case foisted on him by a group of card sharks. In this instance, however, the gamblers are holding his assistant, "Archib" as a hostage.

RADIO NEWS NOTES
Teacher is gonna get it Sunday. For years Albert Spalding, premiere American violinist, who teaches at Juilliard School, has had the last word. But when one of his former pupils, Paul Lavallo, asks him to sit in on a jam session and provide the hot fiddle licks, the prof will agree. This takes place on the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street over the Blue network at 9:15 p. m. Hazel Scott with her boogie woogie piano is an added attraction—but the student, Lavallo, hopes to get hunk with the teacher, Albert Spalding.

Her film co-workers are urging Mary Astor to display a little-known talent of hers on a future Thursday CBS broadcast with Charlie Ruggles and Mischa Auer. The lovely actress once studied to be a concert pianist and is to-day a good enough player to need no movie scenes at the keyboard "dubbed in"—she does the playing herself.

Berry Kroeger, who has withdrawn from "Salute to Youth" so that he can go to Hollywood for a screen test, also had to give up the lead role in "The Falcon" on the Blue network. James Meighan replaced him on the latter series.

More than 8,000 entries have been received in the "Hour of Charm" $10,500 War Bond essay contest, with the contest less than a week old. Essays, which are limited to 50 words or less, continue to pour in to the Nela Park, Cleveland, offices of the electrical company which is sponsoring the contest, and it is estimated that the end of the second week will see the total well beyond the 25,000 mark.

Calendar makers passed from 1 B. C. to 1 A. D., disregarding the Zero year, so that there are only 1,942 years since 1 B. C. rather than 1,943.

Eight Motorists Summoned Before County Ration Board

GASOLINE CARDS MAY BE LIFTED FOR VIOLATIONS

Cited Men All Pay Fines Or Forfeit Bonds On Traffic Charges

REPORTED BY COURTS

Group Is Largest Called So Far Before OPA Representatives

Eight Circleville and Pickaway county motorists who have paid fines or forfeited bonds in various police courts in Ohio for violating speed and other traffic regulations as set up by the Office of Price Administration are scheduled to appear Monday evening for hearings which may result in their losing gasoline rations for periods of time.

All eight motorists have received citations to appear at the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office, West High street, to show cause why their ration cards should not be lifted. The ration board has not released the names of motorists cited to appear.

The number ordered before the mileage panel is by far the greatest ever cited at any one time since OPA was put into operation. All eight men called in have been certified to the rationing office as having violated one regulation or another. Mayors, justice of peace and other officials in whose courts hearings for traffic violations are conducted are under orders to certify names and addresses of motorists convicted of violations.

Other Cards Lifted

The local rationing board has lifted supplemental cards of several motorists in the last month, one man losing his C card permanently for allegedly falsifying his requirements. Several others have lost their rations for from 15 to 30 days.

Paul A. Johnson, chairman of the mileage panel, said Friday that he understood one or more of the men cited in had been convicted of more than one violation.

OPA has started to clamp down on motorists who fail to abide by safe driving regulations as set up by the government to protect tires and conserve gasoline.

State highway patrol in the last week has shown indications that it is joining in the OPA's campaign against waste of tires

COLUMBUS SURGEON ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

Dr. Richard Brashear, Columbus surgeon, discussed cancer Thursday when he spoke before the Circleville Rotary club at its meeting in Pickaway Arms.

The speaker declared that too many persons fail to give attention to cancer in its early stages, declaring that the disease can be cured if treated properly. He said that 154,000 persons die each year from cancer.

operators alike, driving across freshly painted white and yellow center lines on roadway pavement. Arrests are to be made, the patrol has warned.

Already there have been several arrests and convictions for defacing the center lines. Highways in all parts of the state are being center-lined now.

The charge against offenders, according to Superintendent Lynn Black of the patrol, can be reckless driving, violating the traffic code by crossing the center line, defacing highway property, or one of several other misdemeanors.

When motorists failed to heed requests from Highway Director H. G. Sours that they end the practice of defacing the center lining, Harry E. Neal, chief of the department's division of traffic and safety, and Superintendent Black laid out their course of action.

Patrol squad cars have been assigned to follow each of the department's paint trucks. Motorists will be arrested on the spot if they cross the fresh painted stripes.

Small warning markers are placed along the stripes behind the paint trucks so motorists will know the paint is fresh. From an hour and a half to two hours is required for the paint to dry. By smearing the paint motorists create a "definite traffic hazard," Mr. Neal said, and "ruin the effectiveness of all center lining."

RALSTON PURINA PLANT SUFFERS FIRE DAMAGE

Fire in a dust collector at the Circleville plant of the Ralston-Purina Co. caused some damage Thursday night, flames pouring out the top of the building through an air shaft. Fire Chief Talmer Wise said that while fire damage was not so heavy much water was thrown from lines attached to the booster tank on the fire truck and there was some water damage.

Firemen were called at 12:45 a. m. and remained at the plant for about 45 minutes before overcoming the flames. Chief Wise said that an employee told him that workmen had been trying to extinguish the flames since about 10:30 p. m.

Fires in dust collectors in milling plants are common.
